

Humor Content Rules & Guidelines

This document provides rules and guidelines for handling, sharing, and publishing humor content. Since humor can be highly subjective, it is important to ensure that jokes and puns are used responsibly and respectfully across different contexts.

1. General Principles

- Humor is subjective, and not all jokes are suitable for all audiences.
- Content must respect diversity and avoid targeting race, gender, religion, disability, or medical conditions.
- When in doubt, choose safe and neutral wordplay.

2. Allowed Content

- Light-hearted, non-offensive puns (e.g., wordplay like 'Egg zactly!').
- General situational humor that avoids sensitive topics.
- Clever twists that do not harm or ridicule individuals or groups.

3. Prohibited Content

- Jokes that include hate speech, racial slurs, or negative stereotypes.
- Sexual, explicit, or discriminatory humor.
- References that trivialize disabilities, illnesses, or traumatic experiences.

4. Best Practices

- Focus on creativity and wordplay rather than stereotypes.
- Replace offensive jokes with family-friendly alternatives.
- Always consider the target audience (e.g., children, workplace, or public spaces).

5. Example Transformations

- Original: 'What do you call a Russian tree? Dimitree.' → Safe and acceptable.
- Original: 'What's the difference between a pizza and a Jew?' → Offensive, must be removed.
- Replacement: 'What's the difference between a pizza and my homework? Pizza gets finished.' → Safe and appropriate.
